

REFERRAL AND ASSESSMENT CHECKLISTS

5.1. EXAMPLE CHECKLIST: REFERRAL INFORMATION

This checklist can be used when referring clients to other health services in order to identify any potential occupational violence risks. It covers the minimum information which should be gathered at referral, particularly for short visits or one-off visits (i.e. by a GP, maternal and child health nurse or pathology service collecting blood samples from client at their home) where it may not be reasonably practicable to conduct a more in-depth assessment.

Note: this is an example only - it identifies the issues that may be addressed and incorporated into the agency's own documentation. This information may be incorporated into referral forms or gathered verbally at the point of referral.
